CORPORATE

Clark & Trevithick's Corporate Law group counsels clients from a diverse group of industries that includes manufacturing, housing, information technology, digital media, entertainment, financial services, healthcare, and professional services. Our clients are comprised of privately-owned companies, emerging growth enterprises as well as individuals conducting business in the middle market. The Corporate Law group serves as outside general counsel for the firm's clients, often acting as the primary point of contact between the clients and other entities and/or service providers in order to assist our clients with comprehensive and cost effective representation.

Our practice involves advising our clients in a full array of business legal needs, including:

- Corporate governance
- Corporate recapitalizations, restructurings and reorganizations
- Executive compensation
- Licensing, distribution and routine commercial transactions
- Mergers, acquisitions and dispositions
- Partnerships, joint ventures and strategic alliances
- Private placements of equity and debt offerings
- State and federal securities law compliance
- Succession planning
- Risk analysis and management

Our attorneys, many of whom have previously been associated with large international law firms, collectively possess decades of experience and are equipped with broad legal expertise, which enables us to understand and solve our clients' legal problems adopting a balanced and fiscally responsible approach guided by business objectives.
